CONTRACT DISPUTE

Arbitration may bring new life to teacher talks

by Richard Westlund

While the reaction to the 14 per cent pay hike for teachers over two years was met with disdain among some school divisions, Chinook's Edge has breathed a sigh of relief.
Six arbitration cases were settled Thursday last week which sent a message to school divisions, which don't have a contract with its teachers, as to how much they can expect to pay its teachers.

"I am very encouraged," said

Chinook's Edge Board Chair Roy Brassard. I sincerely hope this leads to a settlement at the local level.

Brassard said he thought the stumbling block in negotiations was occurring at the provincial level and is happy the arbitra-tion process has created some progress on the issue.

Brassard said he has a renewed hope that the local teachers' dispute can be re-solved at the local level and is hoping negotiations between the board and the local ATA are able to resume.

'I don't see any point in de laying things any further," he said, adding that he believes an arbitrator would come up with a similar decision in Chinook's Edge School Division.

While other divisions have publicly stated they will not be able to handle 14 per cent, Chinook's Edge guessed that amount when preparing their budget. The increase in instruc-tion costs helped put the division in a deficit position they are covering with reserves.

Our budget forecast was just about bang-on," said will be laid-off if a 14 per cent raise was implemented as the board feels it is absolutely crucial to maintain the resources already in the classroom. While Brassard is optimistic that Chinook's Edge can deal with the raise with teachers, there are issues that need to be solved in the future. He said a solution must be reached as the costs involved with education are rising faster than the level of funding. But for now he would like to get a deal in place.

"I would like to get this resolved - getting this behind us and getting on with life."

Local ATA president Bob Worsfold could not be reached before press time. However two weeks ago he said it would be difficult to come to an agree ment through negotiations in the summer months.

"The board has missed its chance now because even if we can bargain we can't call teachers together to vote on ratification during the summer just can't get teachers together during the summer."

Meanwhile Larry Booi, president of the Alberta Teach-Association, said that teachers would accept the arbitration ruling.

"While arbitration has never een seen by teachers as an ideal solution, this process was fair and we are prepared to live with the results. We also expect that many of the boards that have not yet settled will take their cue from the arbitration tribunal's decisions and negotiate collective agreements without having to go through the formal arbitration proce with files from Carla Victor

Highway 2A could be paved by September

Good weather has allowed construction crews to make progress on secondary highway

by Richard Westlund

Construction on highway 2A between Didsbury and Car-stairs is scheduled to be paved by the end of August said the project's foreman.

Wayne Coston, who is overseeing the project for Richardson Brothers Ltd., said progress on the secondary high-way has been good because of dry weather. Currently the crew has been working on the project for a month now doing the prelimi-nary work for the road. So far work has been done on the shoulders of the road and the north coulee has been brought up to grade.

Richardson Brothers received the contract and completed the work on highway 2A between Didsbury and Olds and are building the new portion to the same specs.

Coston said most of the work on projects like the 2A comes before the actual paving.

"The paving portion doesn't take very long. Once the base is finished we'll bring in the pavor and pave it all at once," said Coston about the process that will be followed, adding that the clean up will happen as the road is paved.

In 1993 the stretch of highway 2A between Olds and Bowden was started and completed in 1996. In 1997 the portion between Carstairs and Crossfield was completed. The stretch from Didsbury to Olds was completed in 1998. Approximately 2,000 to 4,000 vehicles travel along highway 2A each day.

Level of service for fire departments to be determined

County debates merits of standardizing fire equipment

by Carla Victor

A level of service for fire departments must be financially attainable say fire

Determining a level of service for fire departments in Mountain View County (MVC) will be the first step towards building compatible firefighting services from one end of the county to the other. Councillor Charlie Van Arnam brought this issue be-fore council in May. June 26 saw council voting unani-mously to develop a countywide level of service and bring it back to council chambers before the December 2002

MVC meeting.

The need to set a minimum level of service stemmed from the fact that Olds, Sundre, Didsbury, Carstairs and Cremona fire departments all use different equipment, hoses and couplings, not always compatible between depart-

Within each fire depart ment types of equipment and levels of training may vary as Councillor Dave Derksen informed council that this problem spans further than the fire departments. He said even towns don't have compatible fire hydrants.

For example, Olds has three different kinds of fire hydrants and Didsbury has four that need different cou-

"Towns need to decide what kind of hydrant to buy and stick with it," said Derksen.

He explained to council that during a shared service agreement with, for example, Olds and Didsbury assisting each other, firefighters would need to find compatible cou-plers for their different hoses used by each department.

Possibly they would need to try numerous couplers for hoses and hydrants before even beginning to fight a fire. which is a time consuming

"You are scaring me," said Van Arnam to Derksen. "We cannot afford to play this game. I understand making fire departments compatible is expensive but we need to start doing this."

Olds Fire Chief Jack MacIntosh said setting a level of service will be a difficult process but well worth the Setting a level of service for the county will be diffi-cult because of training levels, man power levels, volun teer times and budgets," said MacIntosh.

Shaune Plump, deputy chief in Carstairs said setting a level of service sounds good if the budgets are there to back it up.

"A level of training would be acceptable to us as long as funding is available to provide training to our volun-

said MacIntosh, will include how many trucks will re-spond to a fire in the county, what level of training will be reqired, how many firefighters will be on each vehicle, how many and the types of vehicles that would repond and amounts of water each one would carry.

Reeve Ian Harvie said needs to set the direction for this process.

"This is the table that sets the direction. We need to set a time table and work with the fire chiefs. We have good fire chiefs but I am con-cerned who will be leading this process," said Harvie. Council will forward a letter to fire chiefs explaining their approach, and how council would like departments to deal with it.

Councillor Ben Penner cautioned council to assure the level of service set would be plausible for smaller de-partments in the county as it could be very expensive to bring all the departments up a high level of service. It will be a process of finding some middle ground for all the departments, agreed

The proposed level of service will be determined by council with consultation from all fire chiefs.

Assistant Commissioner Tony Martens informed council they must also consider liability as a catalyst for this agreement.

If the County were sued, the courts would look to MVC's policy to determine whether or not they have met the level of service established by policy, said Mar-

"If we have not established a policy then the courts will determine that level of serv-ice for us," he concluded.

Reserves needed to cover deficit in Chinook's Edge budget

by Richard Westlund

Chinook's Edge School Division will use reserves to cover a $1.6 million deficit in the 2002-2003 budget which was unanimously carried last week

Surplus dollars held in the school and central budgets were needed to balance the budget Treasurer Susan Roy told trustees at the final meeting held during the school year last Wednesday. Roy told the board the situation could be likened to a household that spent money it already had. While she said the solution worked in the short term, she warned the board it could not be a solution used year after year. In submit-ting the budget to Alberta Learning, the Division wrote "Chinook's Edge is concerned that the costs of education are rising faster than the grants we Superintendent Jim Gibbons added that covering the difference between revenues and ex-penditures with a surplus "is not substantiable over the long term." Roy said preparing the budget this year was challengtainties - the biggest being the changes taking place of teachers in salaries and benefits for 2001-2002 and 2002-2003.

The School Division was hoping numbers would be released in the first six arbitration cases in the province and that they would have more ac curate numbers to go by. But because the process had taken longer than expected a best guess had to be made. Early indications show actual numbers are close to w Chinook's Edge predicted what

Last year the division spent $65,100 per teacher. This year that number was raised to $69,500. Roy stressed this number is not a salary for a teacher but a reflection of the instruction budget on a per teacher basis. While Chinook's Edge decided to make a guess what it would be spending on teachers now and adjusting the budget in September to get their budget in on time, some other divisions in the province decided they would wait until the arbitration process had been completed.

Part of the budgeting procs also involved calculating the number of staff required for the upcoming school year. Initial estimates show that student population in Chinook's Edge School Division will drop this year from last. As a result Chinook's Edge is anticipating there will be 15 fewer teachers on the payroll. Chinook's Edge officials said that because of retirements and transfers there will be no layoffs to teaching staff. While no teachers will be laid off, 55 school support workers have been notified that they may not receive re-call notices for the next school year. Final decisions will be made in September when the division assesses the impact of the arbitration ruling regarding the teachers' dispute.

Other increased costs in cluded insurance rates, Alberta Health Care premiums and energy expenditures.

"We're confident about the budget forecasts we've made based on what we know. But the fact is there were some unknowns as we went through the process," said Roy.

Nobody knows the needs of a community where health is involved better than the people who live in it. This is an opportunity to meet some needs in Didsbury which may be overlooked.

In the past this approach has yielded many quality pro-grams throughout the region. Many of them no longer re-quire funding from HA5 as they have figured out some al-

Exercise programs have been set up for youth, palliative care prgrams have been set up by volunteers, non-smoking campaigns have been set up - the list is varied and exten-

This is an opportunity to have local concerns addressed by the people of Didsbury. People in this area value their health care. It was public pressure that saved the hospital a couple of years ago and we just finished going through a doctor shortage crisis.

Health Authority 5 officials have been proud of this approach and how it has been received by the public. Some programs have been many years in the running now and has made our local healthcare system stronger. It has also allowed people to impliment what they feel is important in a healthcare system.

Too many times we are affected by the decisions that others make and we feel powerless in the process. This is an opportunity to be part of the decision making process and perhaps do some real good in our community.

Poor people in Alberta should not be ignored

Dear Editor:

Alberta's poor face a crisis that needs to be addressed immediately. Adults and the 25,000 children on income support get essentially the same today as they received in 1993.

The Alberta government has consistently refused to raise income support rates, even though rates were cut by 20% in 1993 and inflation has risen by nearly 20% during the past nine years. What it means is that the Government expects families to buy their groceries at 1993 prices

For instance, today a mother with two young children receives $1,021 a month to pay for rent, food, cloth-ing, utilities, etc. A person with a severe disability re-ceives $850 a month. This is simply not enough to pay for the basics of life

The government's refusal to raise rates is puzzling. Five of its own MLAs who sat on the Low income Review Committee recommended an in-

The Mazankowski Commit-tee on Health Care said poverty should be reduced to prove the overall health of Alberta. Tens of thousands of Albertans have voiced their support for an increase.

Studies show that poverty costs society hundreds of millions of dollars each year in health care, justice, educa-tion, and other social supports.

By refusing to raise rates, the government is asking us to accept poverty as a fact of Alberta life. They are also asking Alberta's poor to continue to suffer indignities, endure meagre living conditions and face a grim future.

Families in poverty have waited long enough for relief. It's time the Alberta govern-ment showed compassion for the less fortunate. On behalf of the 4,500 members of the Alberta College of Social Workers, I urge Albertans to call the Premier and their MLA. Tell them to raise income support rates. Now!

In a June 25 press release, the local health authority asked that people with ideas on how to make the area healthier or safer submit them to the health authority for review.

"Often, people have ideas that would make their communities healthier or safer, but need some funding to get started. Action for Health Funds help get these ideas off the ground," states the release. "We are looking for projects

"We are looking for projects that take action on health issues of importance to you or your community; projects that address the factors that make and keep people healthy; projects that are community driven - people working together to take action on health; and projects that address regional health priorities such as injury prevention, tobacco reduction, heart health, children and youth, maternal and child, seniors health and palliative care."

Team Leader for Health

Team Leader for Health Promotion in Health Authority 5 Bev Krabsen said the grants have been available for several years and that many unique programs covering a wide-variety of issues have been born.

Councillor Pat James has been appointed to the Provincial Drought Disaster Relief commit-

He is asking for input from anyone on what the committee could recommend to the province to offer relief to farmers affected by the drought.
"We need to hear from council and ratepayers before the next meeting," said James.

James also reported to council information about the FCM convention he attended in Hamilton, Ont. "I was talking to Sheila Copps, Federal Minister of Heritage, and I said, 'if the federal government would emphasize agriculture as much as they did arts and tourism, we wouldn't need any help from government," said

'I told her I'm not a whining, sniveling farmer, I'm speaking of an industry that is suffering," said James.

International students leave Olds College with new skills

Olds College faculty and staff said farewell to 26 visit ing students from Kazakhstan and the Kyrgyz Republic earlier this week.

The study visit lasted from June 3 to 25 and involved leaders from universities and colleges in the former Soviet states. The four-year project aims to help participants teach their own students concepts from conducting needs assessments with industry partners to expanding course develop-

"It's a good feeling to be sharing our expertise in these developing countries and help-ing to enrich the lives of the people who live there," said project manager and Olds College instructor, Donna Gole.

We're beginning to see very positive outcomes from our work. For the first time, our international students are be ing introduced to the idea of talking to industry partners so they can begin developing curriculum to suit their local in-dustries specifically. This market-driven economy is a new concept to residents in Kazakhstan and the Kyrgyz Republic, and it will make graduates from their learning centres more employable and entrepreneurial. The group is also forming very productive relationships amongst them-selves, which will help them further share what they've learned once they're back home.

Specific proposals stemming from the Olds visit include establishing an agricultural employment and training centre, creating demonstration farms to share updated agricultural practices, and forming a con sulting group to take their newfound expertise directly to farmers.

Gole has accompanied the Olds College team on four pre vious teaching trips to Kazakhstan and the Kyrgyz Republic. Other key College staff involved in the prol project include Dan Fullerton, Dean of Business Services, and Bob Wilson, Vice President of Academic Services. The Cana-dian International Development Agency-funded project also has two Canadian industry partners: Hurricane Hydro-carbons and Kumtor Cameco Corporation

"Responding to industry needs in their own countries and then working on perform-ance-based reaming is going to help the economy grow in these countries. It's a very worth-while project to be involved with," said Gole.

This is our first article in quite some time and I don't know what exciting news to begin with. Oh yeah, the Bush Buggy, yeah.

It is proving to be a very worthwhile piece of equipment. We've used it 6 times so far in June, and we are so pleased with it's speed and ease of operation. It makes the job of fighting grass fires a whole lot easier.

Back in April, 6 of our members took the Firefighter I course.

I am pleased to report that they all passed Congratula-tions go to Rob Anderson, Todd Paulson, Matt Hnatiuk, Scott Nygard, Shane Neufeld and Kris Cote. A job well done gentlemen.

On May 11, we held our annual Firefighters Cabaret. We have done this each spring since 1978 or 1979. As usual everyone who was there had a fantastic time. Peter Michaels from BIG 105 radio played some great music, gave away some prizes and helped make the cabaret a success.

This Canada Day (weather permitting) we will light up the sky with fireworks. The show will start when it's dark enough, and as usual it will be a breath taking display. In the first 25 days of June, we answered 18 calls. They

ENVIRONMENT

Canada Dithers: other countries are advancing

Is it possible that some where someone makes Domin-ion sized knitting needles? If so, Canada could sit back in its rocking chair and knit while the rest of the world moves on. Much of the world now admits environmental sustainability is not auto-matic but increasingly must be worked for and paid for. As a state, the country to the South of us is a great foot-dragger although a few cities and NGO's are exemplifying outstanding success in mov-ing to environmentally sustainable operations. Our country on a per capita basis has one of the highest world usages of fresh water, produces garbage at uncons able rates, lags far behind similar nations in wind generation and still fusses about some new formula to replace the Kyoto Protocol. Our politicians brag about

Canadian leadership. A leader is not made by sitting at the fireside, leaders do things sometimes first, sometimes better: leaders lead by example, doing what is necessary now, not waiting for someone else to carry the ball.

Let us consider corporate (not government) leadership in the USA. Collins Pine is a timber company that began in 1855 and sustainably operates 126,000 acres of the original holdings plus current leases. It employs 7,500 people. They do not clear-cut and they fa-vour natural regeneration over monoculture planting. They have been praised in the Washington Post and Christian Science Monitor and by the Rainforest Action Net-work and the Sierra Club. They show a satisfactory yearly profit but less than the clear-cutters. On the other hand they may well be around on the same lands for many more years.

Now lets look at Nike the footwear people. They were alarmed when the pervasive-ness of poisonous solvents and adhesives used in their shoes was pointed out to them. Their labs were given the job of replacing organic solvents with water-based adhesives, cleaners and primers. After several years experimenting they were successful but when the news of the environmentally friendly new discoveries was published, the vinyl industry (PVC's) mounted a campaign to dis-credit their work.

now virtually self-supporting. It assesses products from food and medicines to cell phones vehicles for economy, safety and environmental sustainability. They judge by four criteria: Resource Con-servation: does manufacture of the product use renewable energy and recyclables. Does consume water and require lots of energy to operate? Quality: normal consumer protection concerns. Minimal Use of Toxics: does the product create toxics or nonrenewable materials? Consumers take this very seri-ously. Addition Environmental Criteria: cumulative long term performance and eco-logical effects.

Trust and acceptance by the German people is so great that a poorly rated product seldom lasts more than a month or two on the shelves.

Food products containing Genetically Modifies Organisms get negative ratings and therefore don't sell. German appliances are under national product responsibility meaning the makers must take back every component of the products they make, and as of 2002 this includes cars. These autos are not electrical hybrids, get 78 miles to the gal-lon, but strangely are not available in North America. Banks considering commercial loan applications do an in depth environmental assessment which bears heavily on the acceptance of the project.

Local gentleman celebrates 90 years

Congratulations to Cliff Eckstrand who celebrated his 90th Birthday on Sunday June 16th at Knox United Church.

He paid his dues at church with 90 pennies, then family served 2 large cakes & coffee to the congregation, following a buffet luncheon in the Christian Education Room for rela-tives. A very enjoyable day & Cliff appreciated all of the cards & congratulations & family Sympathy to Jean Shields & family as husband & father, Sherman passed away Saturday, June 22. Funeral services were held at the Didsbury Complex on Friday June 28th. He will be sadly missed. Swede (as he was affectionately called) was born to par-ents Tillie & Claude Shields and with family of 7 children moved to Didsbury area south west of Burr Tuggle Farm in the late 1930's & they all went to school at Clauermount.

Swede & Jean farmed here west on Westcott Rd & raised a family & was a friend to all, enjoyed visiting with family & friends. He had a sever bout with cancer & didn't survive. Will all miss you Swede.

Mrs. Winnie Robertson of Carstairs was guest speaker at Knox U.C.W. May meeting & all enjoyed her informative talk on Habitat For Humanity of Canada.

Habitat For Humanity is an independent - non-profit hous-ing program dedicated to the elimination of poverty housing by building homes in partnership with families in need. Homeowners contribute hundreds of hours of sweat "equity to the construction of their own homes and then repay in building materials.

Homeowners are chosen based on need, the willingne to partner & ability to pay back mortgage.

Winnie has been involved in this housing for a number of yrs. & enjoys the efforts put out by people helping people.

Plans went ahead for the U.C.W. 40th Anniversary, which now took place on Tues. June 25th with about 50 ladies of U.C.W. & Thrift Shop present. All former Presidents were invited. Several have passed away, but Helen Klinck was the first President & she was able to attend the festivities & pot luck dinner. Former secretaries daughter, Jean Devine of 40 yrs ago was also present. A lovely devotional was conducted by Evelyn Clark, Elsie Brander & Margaret Gilchrist, this was honoring the women who have worked through the yrs. for God & the church. Our June birthday party was hosted by several Auxiliary members who called Bingo as the entertainer had to cancel. Of course we had ice cream and cake. Those celebrating June birthdays are Kay Brown and Neva Miller.

Probably the biggest event in June was our Family Pot Luck supper last week. Each resident could invite two guests and they provided a wonderful variety of salads and desserts. Our capable staff supplied meat, buns, and potato salad plus coffee and punch. It was a memorable evening finished off with old time music by George Muza assisted by Phil and Archie. When Mark Twain was editing a newspaper in Missouri, one of his subscribers wrote in, saying that he had found a spider in his newspaper and wondered whether it was a sign of good or bad luck. Twain's response: "Finding a spider is neither good luck nor bad. The spider was merely looking over our newspaper to see which merchant was not advertising, so that he could go to that store, spin his web across the door, and lead a life of undisturbed peace ever afterward."

Focus on the Family

QUESTION: I'm having the hardest time trying to teach my boys about honesty and truthfulness. I talk and talk to them, and it just doesn't seem to do much good. What would you advise?

DR. DOBSON: Someone said, "I'd rather see a sermon than hear one.

There is truth to this statement.

Children may not remember what you say, but they are usually impacted for life by what you do.

Consider the task of teaching your boys to be honest, for example. Yes, you should teach what the Scripture says about truthfulness, but you should also look for opportunities to live according to that standard of right-

I'm reminded of something that happened several years ago in Georgia, when the Bulldogs of Rockdale County High School overcame a big deficit to win the state basketball championship. Coach Cleveland Stroud couldn't have been more proud of his team. But a few days later, while watching the game films of the playoffs, he noticed that there was an ineligible player on the court for 45 seconds during one of the games.

He called the Georgia High School Association and eported the violation, costing the school the title and the trophy. When asked about it at a press conference, Coach When asked about it at a press conference, Coach Stroud said: "Some people have said that we should have kept quiet about it. That it was just 45 seconds, and that the player wasn't really an impact player. But you gotta do what's honest and right. I told my team that people forget the scores of basketball games. They don't ever forget what you're made out of."

You can be certain that every member of the Bulldogs' team will remember the character of Coach Stroud.

dogs' team will remember the character of Coach Stroud.

A letter to the editor of the local newspaper summed it up well. "We have scandals in Washington and cheating on Wall Street. Thank goodness we live in Rockdale County, where honor and integrity are alive and being practiced.

Your boys and girls need to see you doing what is right, even when it is inconvenient to do so.

QUESTION: I'm a single mom who's labored, sweated, prayed, cried, scrimped, saved, cooked, cleaned, taught and shepherded my children through numerous crises without the help of a husband or father for my kids. I'm having a very difficult time of letting go now that they are grown. Do you have any words of wisdom

DR. DOBSON: My office at Focus on the Family sits across the valley from the U.S. Air Force Academy. From there I can see the cadets as they train to be pilots and officers.

I particularly enjoy watching the gliders soaring through the heavens. The only way those graceful yel-low crafts can fly is to be tethered to a powered plane that takes them up to where they can catch a wind current

Then they disengage and sail free and alone until re turning to land.

While watching that beautiful spectacle one day, I recognized an analogy between flying and child rearing as a single parent

There is a time when your children need to be towed by the "mother plane." If that assistance were not available, or if it were not accepted, the "glider" would never get off the ground.

But, inevitably, there comes an appropriate moment for a young pilot to disengage and soar free and alone in blue heavens.

Both operations are necessary for successful flight. If you as a parent are not there for your kids when they are young, they are likely to remain "grounded" for life. On the other hand, if they stay tethered to you as young adults, they will never experience the thrill of independent flight

Letting go not only gives freedom to your grown son or daughter but allows you to soar as well. It's all part

RODEO

Local hands competing in the Calgary Stampede

Events will have a local feel

by Barry Williams

Several local hands are scheduled to compete in the Calgary Stampede, Canada's premiere rodeo.

The rodeo, which carries a $450,000 purse, is Canada's premiere rodeo and attracts world class competitors from Australia, New Zealand and North America. As well, the stock is supplied by the best contractors working for the Canadian Professional Rodeo Association.

Association.

Amongst the hands, trying to line their pockets with some extra change, are current and past Canadian and World champions.

Besides the second richest purse in Canadian rodeo history, an added $50,000 is awarded to the Stampede champion in the five major events, saddle bronc riding, bareback riding, bull riding, steer wrestling, calf roping and ladies barrel racing.

The top four competitors in each event comprised of the Stampede average leader, the Canadian champion, the World Champion and the Rodeo Royal champion will be pitted against each other in a short go around for the $50,000 Stampede champion-

Olds bareback rider, Bill Boyd, the defending Canadian Professional Rodeo Association champion, has never won the $50,000 purse despite being a three-time Canadian champion. Boyd currently leads the Canadian standings and should be a favorite in cashing in on the big money this year.

this year.

Two other cowboys leading their CPRA disciplines this season, calf roper Guy Smith, of Wimborne, and Big Valley bull rider, Kelly Armstrong are hoping this will be their year to capture a Calgary Stampede championship.

Stampede championship.
In the past, three area cowboys have strolled up to the pay window to pick up their $50,000 cheque from the Calgary Stampede rodeo secretary. Six-time Canadian calf roper, Cliff Williamson, of Madden, won the event in 1999 while Carstairs roper Joe Lucas, a four-time Canadian champion, cashed his $50,000 cheque in 1987. The 2000 Canadian saddle bronc champion, Glen O'Neill, of Didsbury, won the Calgary Stampede in 1995.

The ten day rodeo, part of the Greatest Outdoor Show On Earth, runs from july 5-14

In keeping with the western cowboy theme, the World Professional Chuckwagon Association also runs it's annual GMC Stampede Derby, which pays out $50,000. It seems the favorite to win the Rangeland Derby every year is nine-time champion Kelly Sutherland, of Grande Prairie. Sutherland has always been a fan favorite at the Stampede derby and he usually doesn't disappoint his fans as he is normally in the final four "Dash for Cash" race.

Sutherland is currently in tenth spot in the WPCA standings, which is led by Tyler Helming, who has a slim lead over another veteran driver, Reg Johnstone, a three-time winner of the GMC Rangeland Derby.

Although the CPRA and the WPCA are seperate organizations, the WPCA tries to run chuckwagon races at the major CPRA rodeos, which include, Ponoka, Wainwright, High River, Medicine Hat and Strathmore. The WPRCA Dodge Tour champion will be crowned in Red Deer in late August.

So far this season, Johnstone has been the aggregate winner at two WPCA meets, at the Rocky Mountain Derby in Lethbridge and the Drumheller Badlands Dinosaur Derby.

The other winner on the WPCA circuit so far this season have been Norm Cuthbertson at the Grande Prairie Stompede.

If the weather co-operates, the Calgary Stampede Board is expecting the best turn-out for the fair and rodeo and are anticipating an attendance record.

Bill Boyd of Carstairs hangs on for dear life at the Sundre Rodeo.

Didsbury cowboy in the money at the Sundre Rodeo

by Barry Williams

In cards a "spade is a spade" but to Didsbury saddle bronc rider, Glen O'Neill, a Spade is a winning saddle bronc horse. O'Neill, the 2000 Canadian O'Neill, the 2000 Canadian Professional Rodeo Association saddle bronc champion, drew Franklin Rodeo's Spade and spurred an 82 aboard the mount to split the saddle bronc event at the Sundre Rodeo held from June 21-23. A seven time National Finals Rodeo qualifier, O'Neill split with American Cody Martin, of Harfield, Arizona, who spilled the beans out on Franklin's Cowboy Chilli. Both cowboys pocketed $1,579 for their efforts.

Cochrane saddle bronc riders, Billy Richards and Jeremy Braden marked 78's on their mounts to split 5/7, worth $330

New Zealand bareback rider, Rod Duxton marked an 81 on Franklin Rodeo's Fox Den to capture the bareback competition and $1,294 in prize money.

Fresh off a startling win at the Daines Ranch Rodeo in Innisfail, bull rider Jason Finkbeiner, of Wardlow, saw nothing but greenbacks at the end of his ride as he won $1,933 for an 87 aboard Franklin Rodeo's bull, Rodeo Red.

Del Rio, Texas, calf roper

Huston Hutto likes the wide open skies of Canada as he roped two rodeos on Canadian soil by winning the sundre Rodeo for a purse of $1,854 and flanking $2,439 at the Guy Weadick Memorial Rodeo held in High River. Smokin' Joe Lucas, of Carstairs, tied up $1,370 at the Sundre rodeo for a second place calf roping finish.

Calgary bull dogger, Les Deschamps won $2,006 for the steer wrestling championship at Sundre. Meanwhile, Cremona's Kristy White won $517 in the ladies barrel racing, won by Danyelle Campbell of Washington Litah of Washington, Utah.

After pocketing just $489 in the team roping event at Sundre, the roping team of Todd Gallais of, Olds, and Dean Tuftin of, Princeville, Oregon, captured the lucrative competition at the Guy Weadick Memorial Rodeo pocketing $3,336.

An up and coming hand in the saddle bronc riding competition, Ben Louis, of Beiseker, let out a war cry after his 82 ride aboard Big Country's War Cry to win the event at the Guy Weadick Memorial Rodeo, worth $1,159 in change.

Cochrane bull rider, Denton Edge didn't have to cross any states to capture the bull riding event at the Guy Weadick Memorial Rodeo as he pocketed $2,137 for an 87 point ride aboard Big Country's Interstate.

Current CPRA bull riding leader, Kelly Armstrong, of Big Valley, wasn't in a crunch at the Wainwright Stampede as he scored a spectacular 91 points on Baird and Schellenberg's Crunch to tuck $3,321 into his Wrangler jeans.

Wrangler jeans.

Area saddle bronc riders enjoyed the arena at Wainwright as Cochrane's Billy Richards won the event with an 81 point ride on Wolf Creek Skoal, a Big Stone Rodeo horse. Richards cashed a cheque worth $3,087, while Didsbury riders James Crozier and Kerry Wellington won $646 for a 9/8 split.

The Guy Weadick Memorial

The Guy Weadick Memorial Rodeo traditionally starts a slate of rodeos known to the cowboys as "Cowboy's Christmas".

During the next three weeks professional and amateur hands have the opportunity of cashing some very large cheques in five major rodeos; The Ponoka Stampede, Airdrie Country Rodeo, Frontier Days Rodeo in Swift Current, Sask., the Williams Lake Stampede and the Calgary Stampede. A total of $950,000 is up for grabs at rodeos across Canada in the next couple of weeks.
